Connor Frugoli
Development 1 Report
Dr. Wells
Computer Programming for Musicians

My project is coming well so far. This week I kind of got sucked into making my buttons look pretty, wchich then meant I got sucked into making everything else pretty. I still have quite a bit to do, but I've connected all of my HTML elements to my JS code, so that's good. I just need to code in the effects and make them communicate with my HTML elements that I've brought over to my JS code. I specifically need to make a const like we did with MusicTools and put all of my functions into that so I can then export/import that const to my main JS file, but I am having some trouble getting variables (specifically "let") to work in there.

Other than that, going well. Website is coming along ok. I need to figure out some formatting things and further work on how it looks, but I first need to focus on function.